21 highly traumatic event in a child’s life;

22 WHEREAS, this Court must exercise its power of superintending control
23 over pleading and practice in the New Mexico Judiciary under Article VI, Section 24 3, of the New Mexico Constitution to balance the need to protect the health and 25 well-being of children in CYFD custody with current directives from public health

3 the current public health emergency; and

4 WHEREAS, in light of the foregoing, and the Court being sufficiently 5 advised, Chief Justice Judith K. Nakamura, Justice Barbara J. Vigil, Justice

24 b. If applicable, verification from public health officials that the 25 children were exposed to COVID-19 and the number of days remaining in any

1 c. All efforts made by CYFD to ensure audio-video or telephonic
2 visits have occurred since the suspension of in-person visits, and the frequency of 3 those audio-video or telephonic visits;

4 d. If audio-video or telephonic visits were not feasible due to 5 available technology between foster parents and respondents, all efforts made by 6 CYFD to arrange for such visitation;

7 e. Where audio-video or telephonic visits have not been 8 implemented, CYFD shall demonstrate its efforts at providing the respondents with 9 digital photos of the children doing various activities each week; and

17 iv. Efforts to identify and place the children with family if 18 the child is removed from the foster parent;

19 4. The temporary suspension of visitation as a result of the current 20 public health emergency shall not be used against any party in the ultimate 21 determination of parental rights;

22 5. The district court may exercise its discretion to allow in-person
23 visitation between children and respondents upon the recommendation of CYFD 24 and a showing by a clear and convincing evidence that measures are taken with 25 respect to the in-person visitation to ensure the safety and well-being of the 26 children during the current public health emergency;

27 6. Before CYFD makes any recommendation to the court regarding 28 reinstatement of in-person visitation during the current public health emergency, 29 CYFD shall at a minimum screen respondents, foster parents, and children to 30 determine if any of them or members of their households have been exposed to 31 COVID-19;

32 a. In administering such a screening, CYFD shall at a minimum
